

Springtime Mant'leth Every Bough

Thomas Morley (1557 - 1602)

Springtime mant'leth ev-ry bough, in won-der der to be seen, all the world in splendor green, Fa la la la la la
Brook and for - est live a - new, and bird and and beast do sing, to the prom - ise of the spring.

Springtime mant'leth ev-ry bough, in won-der to be seen, all the world in splendor green, Fa la la
Brook and for - est live a - new, and bird and beast do sing, to the promise of the spring.

Springtime mant'leth ev-ry bough, in won-der to be seen, all the world in splendor green, Fa la la
Brook and for - est live a - new, and bird and beast do sing, to the promise of the spring.

Springtime mant'leth ev-ry bough, in won-der der to be seen, all the world in splendor green, Fa la la
Brook and for - est live a - new, and bird and and beast do sing, to the promise of the spring.

la Fa la la la la la la la la la la la la. Hear the laughter, hear the song. Come to the meadow, come to the glade, la Fa la la la la la la la la la la la la. Hear the laughter, hear the song. Come to the meadow, come to the glade,
la Fa la la la la la la la la la la la la. Hear the laughter, hear the song. Come to the meadow, come to the glade,
la Fa la la la la la la la la la la la la. Hear the laughter, hear the song. Come to the meadow, come to the glade,

God and man in goodness made. Fa la.
God and man in goodness made. Fa la.
God and man in goodness made. Fa la.
God and man in goodness made. Fa la.