The Organizing Committee is pleased to announce the 16th Symposium of the International Dostoevsky Society to be held at the University of Granada, June 7-10, 2016. The Symposium will commemorate the 150 years since the publication of "Crime and Punishment".

The Symposium's main goals are to promote multidisciplinary research on this essential novel and to bring together Dostoevsky researchers interested in the Conference topics:

1. "Crime and Punishment": 150 years since its publication.
2. New contributions to the study of Dostoevsky's life and work.
3. Dostoevsky in the world of Sciences and Arts.
4. Dostoevsky's contributions to understanding the literary process, fiction, and literary communication.
5. "Crime and Punishment" in Spain: its reception and translation into Spanish.

The official languages of the symposium are Russian, English, and Spanish.

Presentations, which should last exactly 20 minutes, will be followed by 5 minutes for questions and discussion.

Plenary Speakers will be confirmed by mid-October.

In addition to scheduled sessions, a round table on "Translating Dostoevsky" is planned during the symposium.

An exhibition of illustrations of Dostoevsky's works will be part of the symposium program in collaboration with the F.M. Dostoevsky Museum in Moscow and Saint-Petersburg.
