Material Development

She is a specialist in the field of designing language teaching materials in digital format. She has developed web language materials and designed, created and maintained several web sites individually and in collaboration with some projects throughout the years:

Isabel's ESL Site: The most relevant contribution in this field of material development has been made through a personal web site <http://www.isabelperez.com/> devoted to secondary education teachers and students.

She started this site in 1997 and has developed many different types of teaching and learning materials in the last 11 years. It contains 4 main blocks of stuff:

1. Methodological materials, related to teaching languages and ICT: workshops, resources, etc.
2. Materials developed by the students with the teacher's assessment: writings, email projects, blogs, wikis, etc.
3. Specific materials designed and developed by Isabel Pérez: vocabulary, grammar and cultural exercises, Treasure Hunts, WebTasks, WebQuets, etc.
4. Link pages to all kind of selected resources.

The site presents an eclectic approach and means to integrate all possibilities offered by the use of the computers in the classroom. The approach is also varied in terms of subjects and of culture, social and personal values.

Other projects are:

ADELEX Project, WebCT course on assessing and developing vocabulary, devoted to English Philology students in the University of Granada.

INTERLEX Project, aiming at helping secondary student develop vocabulary through the Internet <http://averroes.cec.junta-andalucia.es/interlex>. It contains teaching material such as vocabulary tests, vocabulary exercises and vocabulary lists.
