

Education for All

Six goals for 2015

PLANNING NATIONAL EDUCATION STAKEHOLDER CONSULTATIONS

ENSURING THAT EDUCATION FOR ALL IS FULLY INTEGRATED IN NATIONAL STRATEGIC FRAMEWORKS

CONTENTS

1. INTRODUCTION	1
2. THE ROLE OF CONSULTATION IN NATIONAL PLANNING.....	3
2.1 WHAT IS A CONSULTATIVE PROCESS?.....	3
2.2 Why is consultation important?	3
2.3 What kinds of consultation are there?	5
2.3.1 A National EFA Forum.....	5
2.3.2 Regional consultations	6
2.3.3 Local consultations	6
3. ANTICIPATED OUTCOMES OF A CONSULTATIVE PROCESS	8
4. PLANNING FOR EFA: NATIONAL ACTION PLANS	9
5. PLANNING STAGES.....	9
6. CASE STUDY: THE ROLE OF CONSULTATION IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF GUYANA'S EDUCATION STRATEGIC PLAN 2003-07	14
7. CONSIDERATIONS IN PLANNING CONSULTATIONS	17
7.1 Defining "participation".....	17
7.1.1 Management and organisation of a consultative strategic planning process.....	18
7.2 Identifying participants in a consultative process: who to invite?	20
7.2.1 The internal constituency.....	20
7.2.2 The external constituency.....	21
7.3 How many consultations and how long should they be?	22
7.4 Costing the consultative process.....	24
7.4 "Selling" the consultative process to the Ministry of Education	27
8. WHAT DO YOU DO WITH THE RESULTS OF A CONSULTATION?	29
9. SUMMARY	30

UNESCO Office
for the Caribbean

PLANNING NATIONAL EDUCATION STAKEHOLDER CONSULTATIONS

Ensuring that Education
For All is fully integrated in National Strategic Frameworks

This document was presented as a working paper at the UNESCO Caribbean Regional Forum on National Stakeholder Consultations, held September 7-10, 2003 in Belize City, Belize. Contributions from the participants at this Forum, a group of high-level education decision makers (Chief Education Officers and Senior Education Officials representing Anguilla, Antigua and Barbuda, The Bahamas, Belize, Cayman Islands, Dominica, Grenada, Guyana, Netherlands Antilles, St. Kitts and Nevis, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, Suriname and Trinidad and Tobago), enriched this revised version, published by UNESCO.