About our libraries

The UGR has a total of 21 libraries which are spread out across the city, meaning that a comfortable study environment is always close to you. Many of the library buildings date back as far back as the 16th century and therefore form an integral part of the city's architectural and cultural heritage. The library housed in the magnificent Hospital Real building, for instance, was constructed at the behest of the Catholic Monarchs, and stands as an architectural masterpiece in its own right.

A wealth of diverse resources

The resources available at the university libraries are extensive and are constantly being updated. New publications and editorials are acquired on a daily basis.

Electronic Resources

A vast range of electronic resources have also been made available to students at the UGR, from databases, electronic journals and magazines to e-books, dictionaries, and encyclopaedias.

Courses and Workshops

Additionally, the library offers introductory courses to new users on how to use the library resources most effectively, as well as running an array of workshops every month designed to support academic research and documentation and communication skills (for instance, on thesis/dissertation research, methodology, and writing).
